

A Mysterious Night of Murder

Piper Welch and Jack Rybarczyk

George Du Pont welcomes a crowd to his peevish mansion. The sound of violin filled the halls as the guests entered. People had come from near and far, from Mobile to Lodi to be here. It was the event of the decade.

An argument begins. It's Professor Peabody and George Du Pont. Professor Peabody says "I'm mad about Jealousy". George Du Pont responds with an insult.

William Carmichael, a known friend to Professor Peabody enters the Bar, immediately jumping in to defend Professor Peabody, saying to George Du Pont, "you don't know anything about Jealousy"!!

William Carmichael, Professor Peabody and George Du Pont go to a corner in the Bar together, out of sight from the rest...

Outside the Bar, the party goes on, a little quieter
now

Soon, a scream is heard. It's Margaret Du Pont, in the Bar. They found a body. "No!! Somebody killed George Du Pont!! Why?? Get me a phone!!"

Weeping, Margaret Du Pont calls the police, demanding they send their finest detective. Not 20 minutes later, Detective Hue arrives, takeing a puff out of his pipe, looking around, and saying his famed catchphrase: "la-di-dah!"

Detective Hue looks around the house. Soon he finds the murder weapon: a Knife

Detective Hue begins questioning the people from the scene of the crime

Detective Hue sits down with Professor Peabody, and begins asking about their relationship with George Du Pont. It soon becomes clear that Professor Peabody has a motive: Jealousy

Professor Peabody admits they were in the same room as George Du Pont! But, they admit they didn't do it...

What's that! Out of the corner of his eye, Detective Hue sees a bloody jacket...He checks the pocket and sees a receipt for Knife. Hue has the brilliant idea of making everybody try on the jacket until it fits...

Dr. Phillip D. Farnsworth tries on the leather jacket.

Marilyn Van Den Oord tries on the leather jacket.

William Carmichael tries on the leather jacket.

George Du Pont tries on the leather jacket.

Mrs. Rockefeller-Vanderbilt tries on the leather jacket.

Professor Peabody tries on the leather jacket.

The jacket fits Professor Peabody like a glove.

Detective exclaims "la-di-dah"!!

Professor Peabody is arrested for murder. They will spend life in jail for their heinous crimes.
